THE WEDDING GARMENT

2. And he, who wore it, to his Spouse bequeathed it when he died;'a wedding garment' to adorn the beauty of the Bride:

- 3. that she might fair and spotless stand, before her Bridegroom's sight, robed in 'the righteousness of Saints', 'fine linen, clean and white'.
- 8. Fond soul! the Love, that could provide so rich a feast for thee, can make thee, with Christ's seamless robe, what guest of Christ should be.

7. Skins of the primal sacrifice

The wedding garment of the Lamb makes his redeemed ones glad!

our primal parents clad!

4. The Supper of the Lamb is laid, and I am summoned there; how can I for so great a feast my 'filthy rags' prepare?

9. He that his own Son sparèd not from death, that we might live, how shall he not with him, to us all things as freely give?

5. How can I meet my Lord and King, how for his table dress, decked in so poor and vile a thing, as my best righteousness?

- 10. What is the garment to the feast?or to his kindly call?He, for thy most, and for thy least, is thy great 'All in All'.
- 6. The Heavens are in his sight unclean, his angels are not clear from charge of folly, how dare I before my Lord appear?

Words: John S. B. Monsell. Music: Johannes Thomas Rüegg. Copyright © 2019 Johannes Thomas Rüegg. Source: www.christmysong.com/2094/